History of Women Violence and Its Causes in India: A Brief Study

Dr. Shyamal Chandra Sarkar*

Abstract

Male man and woman play an important role to build human society. They depend on each other and for producing human society. Both male man and women are treated as the two sides of the same coin. Woman occupies remarkable position in every aspect of human development i.e. social, religious, ethical, educational, cultural etc.

The violence or harassment against women is continued from ancient period and sometimes it is found in the present society also. Women are faced humiliation, torture and exploitation in their life from the male man. Women are the victims of rape, murder, sexual harassment, eve-teasing, kidnapping etc. The power of women became deteriorate in medieval period but now-a-days, they have got right in every aspect as like as the male man.

There are three categories of women violence i.e. Criminal violence, Domestic violence and Social violence.

Women violence are of Six types, these are, viz, Money oriented, seeking power over the weak, pleasure-seeking, perpetrator's pathology, stressful family situations and victims-precipitated.
