Distribution of meal among students and community

The college organizes Saraswati Puja annually on Basant Panchami, with the event structured into two segments.

In the first segment, the puja ceremony is conducted, followed by the distribution of Prasad consisting of various fruits. This Prasad is offered to students, invited guests, and all visitors to the college on this auspicious occasion. The college ensures that everyone, including people from the neighbourhood and underprivileged communities, receives the fruits Prasad and "khisudi labra".

The second segment of the event involves a large-scale meal preparation, where cooked meals are provided to all who visit the college on that day. Notably, students and faculty members of all communities take part in distributing these meals to guests and visitors from the neighbourhood, showcasing hospitality and fostering a sense of universal brotherhood.

The overarching goal of the event is to celebrate Indian civilization's legacy of harmony and respect, emphasizing the motto of serving food with dignity to visitors from diverse backgrounds. This inclusive approach ensures that even individuals from marginalized communities and beggars participate in the meal, fostering harmonious relations and a spirit of unity among all participants.
