bardo, which is an intermediary state between life and the afterlife. Willie Lincoln materializes in the Bardo and is greeted by Hans Vollman—a deceased printer who was killed at the age of 46 by a falling support beam—and Roger Bevins III—a young man who took his life after being refused by a young man named Gilbert with whom Bevins was in love. In the Bardo, everyone that Willie meets is a person has died and been buried in the same cemetery as Willie. Though they are in the Bardo, they are able to view the cemetery around them. They also believe that they are not dead but merely sick. However, Vollman and Bevins encourage Willie to pass on to the next stage of the afterlife, as they know that the Bardo is a dangerous place for young people.

Editorial

We are happy to publish a little magazine called IXORA. IXORA is a small trees that have leathery evergreen leaves. The Assamese name of IXORA flower is 'rangan' or 'rogiyal' and we come across the flower blooming everywhere in Gauripur and its surrounding areas. IXORA is said to be native to Asia whose name derives from an Indian deity Iswara. It stands for passion and energy. The departmental little magazine has been named after IXORA with a view to giving thumps up to fortune and abundance. IXORA

The little magazine aims at to discover the joy of learning. On the cover of this issue we have used Van Gogh's canvas painting 'The Starry Night' which also stands for hope.

I look out
Through the window
As if I was staring at your eyes
That blooms like a spring
A butterfly flutters
Onto your hair lock
As it flutters on the petals of roses
I gaze around
And see you
You bloom like
Sesame flower on the other side of the bank
